The Faculty of the College, through Prolessor B. Puryear (chairman), made a most favorable report. The number of graduates this year will be large, comprising four M. A.'s and a number of A. B.'s, besides many graduates in schools.

It was most interestingly shown that Richmond College-having more matriculates from the State than any college, or even the University, by nineteen, for this session-is doing more for the State than tion-books belonging to the committee, and any institution in Virginia. Richmond should make a note of this. The Board received a proposition from the Richmond College is one of the institutions of our city, attracting hither a large number of generous youth, and causing the annual expenditure among our merchants and others of a large sum of money. It is frequently called the "Baptist College," and while the Baptists have endowed it, it is purely a literary institution, and nothing of a denominational, or even theological, character is taught. Our citizens are showing their appreciation of the value of the College, and their pride in lits growing success and reputation by a large attendance upon its exercises. merly the popular commander of the steamer

In the College are two literary societies, between which there is a noble rivalry. The contest for superiority elicits and develops the capacity of the students as debaters and orators. The two celebrations on succeeding nights must have been very gratifying to the young gentlemen and their many friends. Last night the beautiful chapel was filled again. Many came before the hour appointed to secure eligible seats. While many persons of both sexes of sober time on a visit to various points of interest age were present, the beaux and their enjoy each others' society as much as they did the elegant literary repast that was fur-

These set speeches are difficult to make, and when one avoids the ordinary routine he deserves much credit. Mr. Barglebaugh acquitted himself to the entire satisfaction Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth, while of his Society and of the audience.

Culpeper county furnished both of the orators. Mr. William W. Field was the a rock or brick and fell, striking her head first. He is the son of General James C. against the curbstone. These exercises have always been interesting, and large numbers of the friends of the institution, as well as other citizens, have shown their interest in the exhibitions by generally attending them and giving to the Academy their support.

A very few minutes after the hour named be ceremonies commenced by the rendition of a grand march on three pianos by Misses Kirk, L. Phillips, and A. Coghlan. While the march was being played the children filed into the ball through opposite doors and after going through various intricate and pretty evolutions took their seats. The following musical programme was then rendered: Chorus, Sonnambula; Solo, piano, Æolian Harp, Miss B. Lubbock; Trio, two sopranos and alto, Belisario, Misses K. and r. Toppin and B.
